

A Day's Tour of LOUISVILLE

Iroquois Park—Largest in Louisville's chain of famous city parks, this is a wooded area of 676 acres. A roadway winds through the park to the top of Iroquois Hill, a prominence from which the downtown Louisville section and the Indiana knobs across the Ohio are clearly visible. The park has a public golf course, tennis courts, bridle paths and picnic areas. It also is the site of Iroquois Amphitheater, a setting for summer entertainments.

From Iroquois Park, return on Taylor Boulevard to the Watterson Expressway (Interstate Route 264) interchange and turn right onto the beltline road.

Ford Motor Company, Fern Valley Road and Grade Lane—For a tour by appointment through the Ford Motor Company assembly plant, largest and newest in the South, turn right off the expressway at Crittenden Drive South and continue 2½ miles out Crittenden Drive and Fern Valley Road. Tours may be arranged Monday through Friday at 1:00 p.m. by calling the plant. The drive to the Ford plant passes the International Harvester Company, the largest wheel tractor plant in the world. To resume the historic and cultural tour, return on Fern Valley Road and Crittenden Drive to the Watterson Expressway and turn right.

The first turn (clearly marked) off the expressway past Crittenden Drive leads to Standiford Field and the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center.

Standiford Field—Louisville's commercial air traffic is handled at this busy, modern terminal. There are public dining rooms and observation decks in the two terminal buildings.

Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center—Located immediately across the expressway from Standiford Field, this modern 350-acre facility is reached via a cloverleaf traffic exchange. The Exposition Center Coliseum, with its two interconnecting wings, is the largest multi-use building in America and is used for sporting events, conventions and musicals. The State Fair is held here each August. The American Rose Society maintains rose gardens fronting the coliseum.

Leaving the main entrance of the Fairgrounds, follow markers to the North-South Expressway North and drive toward the downtown area. Depart from the expressway at the Broadway exit and turn left into this main artery.
